FOR STORK'S GIFT WHEN MONEY IS SCARCE.

Editor and Social Corner:-When I read the list of "necessary" things for the tiny stranger I do not wonder that people of the working class cannot afford to have children. Here is a list of what can be made to do. Four bands of double flannel ette—the edges overcast with white slikelene—6 by 18 inches, cost 10 cents. I like these better than all wool and the band being double keeps in place and the pins do not bunch. Three little shirts that are good and soft can be bought for 25 cents each, 75 cents. I think 27 inches is a good length for the three pet-ticoats of white flannelette as I like to keep the feet warm and I like a band of cotton about 5 inches wide in-stead of a waist so that the skirt can be changed easily if wet. cost 55 cents for three. Socks and stockings get wet and need changing often and are not needed the first three months. Three slips of white flannelette for nights have a tape at fiannelette for nights have a tape at the neck and cost 60 cents for fiannelette and 5 cents for tape. For day dresses six slips of white will take 12 yards $1.50 and the lace for neck and sleeves about 75 cents more. You can get ten yards diapers for $1.00 and then make as many more as possible of old sheets, white table cloth, old fiannelette that has faded white, etc. Make different sizes but don't leave the raw edges. A long kimona of pink and white and one of blue and white are handy and will only cost 40 cents and two square blankets of white are 20 cents. A good coat can be over cast with silkolene. for 50 cents and bably is all right for $7.90 for clothes. Now when the mother can't afford even this sum often she can manage with even less, and have baby just as clean and more comfortabe than many an over-dressed little one. The bands can be made from strips 6 by 18 inches cut lengthway of a pair of underdrawers and cost nothing. These are firm enough single and the edges can be over cast with scilkolone. Three very comfortable little shirts can be made from old soft underwear if the seams are opened and the edges caught down perfectly flat. All of the diapers can be neatly made from old white or light cloth and are more comfortable than new. It is better to He married late in life being over comfortable than new.
